

HOW TO STOP MASS SURVEILLANCE IN HARRISON COUNTY

You can help. Show up. Speak up. Bring a friend.

1

GO TO THE AUDITOR'S OFFICE

Ask to speak at a County Commissioners meeting about Flock cameras and mass surveillance.

Harrison County Government Center, 245 Atwood St. NE, Suite 211, Corydon
Auditor's Office: (812) 738-8241 | Mon.-Fri., 8:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

2

ASK FOR THE NEXT MEETING DATES

Commissioners usually meet the 1st and 3rd Monday at 7:00 p.m. County Council usually meets the 2nd and 4th Monday at 7:00 p.m. Dates can change. Ask the Auditor for the next two dates, times, and places.

3

PICK A DATE AND GET ON THE AGENDA

Choose a meeting. Before you leave, make sure you know the exact date, time, and place. Ask the office to confirm that your name and topic will be on the agenda.

4

BRING PEOPLE WITH YOU

Ask friends, family, neighbors, and business owners to come. They do not all have to speak. Filling the room matters. Try to bring at least one friend.

5

BRING FACTS TO HAND OUT

Bring printed research from trusted sources. Make copies for the Commissioners or County Council. Show the full picture - privacy risks, data sharing, mistakes, costs, oversight, and other concerns - not only the benefits of the cameras.

6

SPEAK UP

Make your speech about 2-4 minutes long. Practice it before you go. Tell county leaders why you are concerned. Ask for clear privacy rules, public oversight, and a pause on adding more Flock cameras while those rules are made.

7

VIDEO IT AND SHARE IT

Have at least one person video your speech. After the meeting, record a short update about what happened. Share the videos on Facebook and local community pages. Invite people to the next meeting.

ASK COUNTY LEADERS TO:

Pause new Flock cameras until Harrison County has clear public rules for privacy, data use, sharing, oversight, and spending.
